Contractor's Pollution Liability Portal

An overview of Contractor's Pollution Liability (CPL)

Most contractors work in sectors that require them to use, move, operate, uncover or create materials that can result in an array of risks and pollution exposures. From shingles to chemicals, live wires to insulation, contractors are constantly dealing with the risk of incident that may result in damage to themselves, the sites on which they are working or even their reputation. Markel Canada's comprehensive Contractors Pollution Liability portal allows brokers to quickly quote, bind and provide coverage for their contractor clients working in various fields that run the risk of environmental or pollution exposure.

Markel Canada's CPL Portal: Designed for brokers that handle small to medium sized client risks involving contractors' operations and various types of pollution that may be a result of their projects.

We've harnessed the Markel Connect portal technology that our brokers know and love to roll out a user friendly approach to quoting, binding and issuing Contractor's Pollution Liability policies in just minutes.

Our appetite driven underwriting approach aims to seamlessly service risk profiles that fit within our CPL appetite to allow for quick quoting, binding and issuing processes that involve little to no underwriter intervention.

Getting started on the CPL portal

To get started send an email to the CPL portal support team (cpl.support@markel.com) to obtain a username and password. We will share our user guide and other helpful material when your account is activated. We require brokers to be licensed by their provincial governing insurance chapter, but do not require a brokerage contract to be in place before users may begin submitting business to the portal.
